Abstract: This article intends to study pieces of Roman military equipment, found on the Danube limes, especially pieces of the Roman provinces Dacia, Moesia Superior and Moesia Inferior. The pieces belong to the following categories: military cingulum, triconch hinges for lorica, buckles, belt ends, veterae felix belts, pendants in the shape of phallus. They are discovered in Dacia, and in this article are presented a number of 49. Many of them have been dated in the late Roman period, and were found in Roman sites such as those from Sucidava, Romula, Drobeta and Dierna. Ties of former Dacia province and the two Moesii are visible, and demonstrate Roman military control in the Danube line area.*
